

Matthew Squire was born in Halifax, England where from a young age he trained as a dancer, gymnast and musician. Dance became the most important of all these interests, and he completed vocational training at the Royal Ballet School, Upper School and at London Studio Centre.

Engagements in Companies in Germany followed over the next 12 years (in Kiel, Rostock, Koblenz and again Kiel), and he danced and created many roles in works from the classical repertory as well as creating roles with current choreographers.

From 2004 he trained as a physical therapist, and as a Pilates Coach; after qualifying he worked for 6 years in an out-patient rehabilitation centre. The work involved training top athletes from many types of sport, as the centre was also an Olympic support centre. Simultaneously he continued his link with the theatrical world by treating dancers and giving Pilates classes for professional musicians and actors.

Matthew began his present work at the Palucca University of Dance Dresden in 2013, in his capacity as Body Awareness Coach and leader of the Health Team.
